

VANUATU

BUSINESS

EXTENSIVE, THOROUGH AND PROFOUND

REVIEW

Advertising Rates

Room to Grow

At first glance, the new Luganville wharf looks like a vast expanse of nothing. But that's kind of the point.

The 360-metre concrete and steel facility is big enough to fit a cruise ship and a moderately sized container ship simultaneously. Requiring over 10,000 tonnes of cement, including more than 400,000 bricks fabricated on-site, the project is almost out of scale with its surroundings.

Roughly 7,000 cubic metres of earth were moved in the construction process, and by the time construction is finished in June next year, the contractor will have constructed or refurbished 20 separate structures.

The project is managed by Shanghai Construction Group, an S&P, one of the large construction firms in the world. They cut their engineering teeth during the 1990s when political and economic conditions transformed their home city of Shanghai into what the New York Times called 'a builder's dream'.

At one point, revenues were growing 30% year on year.

Their highest profile project is the Shanghai Tower, currently the tallest office in China and second only to Dubai's Burj Khalifa globally. >

VANUATU BUSINESS REVIEW 9

Demographic

Decision makers such as Corporate Professionals, Government Officials and Business Owners.

Vanuatu Business Review will inform and resonate with their business needs each month, with each edition covering all aspects of doing business in the Pacific. With current and relevant information on banking, legislation, stocks, cash and everything else business related, Vanuatu Business Review will be the leading voice of business in Vanuatu. It will be printed once a month and distributed free with The Daily Post newspaper and will also be published online, keeping our readers fingers on the pulse, even if they aren't on the ground in Vanuatu.

Rates

Full Page Colour Ad

175 x 237mm

VT 41,250

Half Page Colour Ad

175 x 115mm

VT 26,250

All rates quoted include VAT.

For sales and enquiries contact Vanuatu Media Marketing Tel: (678) 23224 www.vmm.vu

